Abstract

In this paper I want to deal with the problem of the religious architecture of Ebla in the Northern Levant and of Hazor in the Southern Levant. In particular, the typologies of the temples of Ebla and Hazor in Middle Bronze I-II, the developments of the typologies documented at Hazor in Late Bronze I-II and the survivals of Ebla typologies – after its final destruction at the end of Middle Bronze IIB – until the Iron Age I-II in the Northern and Southern Levant will be discussed.
